

About the College

D.K. Government College for Women (Autonomous), Nellore, stands as a beacon of women's education and empowerment in Andhra Pradesh. Founded with the mission to advance women's access to high-quality, autonomous education, the college has a legacy of academic excellence and a deep commitment to societal upliftment. With a broad spectrum of undergraduate and postgraduate programs, the institution fosters an environment where students are encouraged to achieve their full potential in academics, leadership, and community service.

As an autonomous institution, D.K. Government College for Women (A) continuously evolves its curriculum to meet the demands of a rapidly changing world. The college prides itself on offering a holistic educational experience, blending rigorous academic training with skill-building opportunities that prepare women to become well-rounded leaders in society. With modern facilities, a student-centered approach, and a dynamic learning atmosphere, the college cultivates a spirit of inquiry, resilience, and ethical responsibility.

About the Department of English

The Department of English at D.K. Government College for Women (A), Nellore, has been a cornerstone of the college since its inception. Recognized for its dedication to fostering language proficiency, cultural sensitivity, and analytical skills, the department offers a rich curriculum that spans literature, linguistics, and communication studies. Our students are encouraged to explore the power of language as both an academic pursuit and a practical tool for cross-cultural engagement.

With five dedicated faculty members, three of whom hold doctorates and one actively pursuing her Ph.D., the department is committed to academic rigor and innovation. Faculty members bring a wealth of knowledge and experience, engaging students in a blend of traditional scholarship and contemporary applications. The department is also actively involved in research, seminars, and workshops, enabling students to deepen their understanding of the English language in both global and local contexts. Through its academic and extracurricular initiatives, the Department of English strives to produce articulate, critical thinkers and compassionate communicators prepared to make meaningful contributions to society.

About the Workshop

This one-day workshop is designed to provide an in-depth understanding of nonverbal cues in second-language (L2) communication and their influence on the behavioral adaptation of first-language (L1) learners. Participants will explore theoretical and practical aspects of L2 nonverbal communication and its impact on personal and academic interactions among learners.

OBJECTIVES

- 1.To explore the impact of L2 nonverbal cues on the behavior and communication styles of L1 learners.
- 2.To examine the application of nonverbal cues in various social and educational contexts.
- 3.To foster an understanding of cross-linguistic and cross-cultural behavioral adaptations.

TARGET AUDIENCE

This workshop is open to students (Degree, PG & Ph.D.) with an interest in language acquisition, communication, and behavioral psychology. It is especially beneficial for those studying languages, education, psychology, or related fields.

WORKSHOP HIGHLIGHTS

- Insight into Nonverbal Communication: Understand the significance of nonverbal cues in second-language acquisition and their role in shaping L1 learner behavior.
- Hands-on Training: Engage in activities that demonstrate the practical implications of L2 nonverbal cues.
- Interactive Sessions: Participate in discussions, group activities, and real-world applications of nonverbal cues in educational settings.
- Research-Based Learning: Insights from recent research on psychometric exploration of L2 influence on L1 learners will be shared.

WORKSHOP BENEFITS

- Certification upon completion
- Opportunity to gain practical skills in nonverbal communication
- A chance to interact with experts and fellow students interested in language and behavior
